

Social Whirl

By NAN KNICKERBOCKER

MAYBE it's the organdy curtains that were hanging at the windows of the two-car garage which suggested a party background. At any rate, since they moved into their Loudonville home, the Rev. Laman H. Bruner Jr., rector of St. Peter's Episcopal Church, and Mrs. Bruner have found the garage an ideal spot.

"We really plan someday to make the garage into a recreation room," Mrs. Bruner explained. "For the present, we give it a fresh coat of gray and white paint each year."

This week, the garage was the setting for a picnic type party of 80 men and women, vestrymen and their wives. The weather was perfect and the guests were able to walk about outside and enjoy the punch which was served on the terrace. Inside the garage were the long tables, decorated with sprays of lilac and candles in colored globes, and the buffet table with its salads and cold cuts. As an auxiliary dining area, some of the men from the church set up what Mrs. Bruner called a Rube Goldberg tent.

Among those attending the party were Mr. and Mrs. Storrs Bishop, Dr. Evan R. Collins and Mrs. Collins, Mr. and Mrs. Donald G. Hatt, Mr. and Mrs. D-Cady Herrick, Mr. and Mrs. Robert P. Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Sydney T. Jones Jr., Dr. Brandon W. Macomber and Mrs. Macomber, Gen. A. C. O'Hara and Mrs. O'Hara, Mr. and Mrs. Douglas W. GOLDEN WEDDING ANNIVERSARY—50th wedding anniversaries are very much in the news these days. Among recent ones which have been celebrated are those of Mr. and Mrs. Pasquale Caruso, Briar Avenue, and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Ferraioli of Weaver Road, Altamont. Mr. and Mrs. Caruso were feasted at Son's Restaurant, with about 100 relatives and friends of the couple attending the reception. Earlier in the day, Mr. and Mrs. Caruso and their family attended Mass at St. Margaret Mary's Church.

Mr. and Mrs. Caruso were born in Italy but have lived in this country most of their lives. Mr. Caruso is retired from New York Central Railroad and spends much of his time at his favorite hobby gardening. The Carusos have three daughters, Mrs. Alexander Toth, Mrs. Charles Peplowski and Mrs. William Heiserman, and two sons, John and Thomas Caruso, all of Albany. The couple has 14 grandchildren.

CELEBRANTS — Mr. and Mrs. Pasquale Caruso of Briar Road, cut the cake for their 50th wedding anniversary. About 100 friends and relatives joined the couple for the happy occasion.
